Clarification of News Report

We write with respect to the attached news article entitled "More companies studying REIT as funding option" posted in BusinessWorld Online on March 10, 2020. The article reported in part that:

"THE new rules on real estate investment trust (REIT) is starting to attract businesses outside traditional property developers, as operators of toll roads and airports have begun studying the potential of such fund-raising tool.

Metro Pacific Tollways Corp. (MPTC) and Megawide Construction Corp. have both expressed interest in tapping the financial instrument and said they were looking at the possibility of issuing infrastructure REITs.

'We are studying the REITs as possible funding alternative,' MPTC President Rodrigo E. Franco said in a text message over the weekend.

While the company has not made any decision on REITs yet, he said MPTC finds it attractive because it fits the company's assets. 'It allows asset owners to securitize part of the portfolio and, if structured properly, can be a more efficient means of raising funds,' Mr. Franco said.
