Clarification of News Report

We write with respect to the attached article entitled "BIZ BUZZ: MVP's bets" posted in Inquirer.net on November 12, 2021. In the said article, it was reported in part that:

"Two key operating units of infrastructure holding firm Metro Pacific Investments Corp. (MPIC) may be up for initial public offering (IPO) in the coming years.

The first is toll road arm Metro Pacific Tollways Corp. (MPTC), which will soon get a big bump in revenues from new projects, including the Cebu-Cordova bridge, which is expected to start generating revenues in March. The North-Luzon Expressway connector road is likewise nearing completion.

MPIC chair Manuel V. Pangilinan, aka MVP, said the group may consider getting a strategic partner to buy into MPTC 'to anchor the IPO.'

Many parties have expressed interest, but MPTC has not decided yet because its priority is to await the new earnings stream from its big-ticket projects. MPTC president Rodrigo Franco said the group wouldn't want to be 'undervalued.'

Asked whether Metro Pacific Hospital Holdings Inc. would revive a previously shelved IPO plan, MVP said while this wasn't likely to happen in 2022, 'there's possibility of that happening in 2023.'

He has been quite impressed with the recovery of the hospital group, with revenues from its chain of 18 hospitals possibly ending at over P30 billion this year. After Manila Electric Co., this unit is now becoming the biggest revenue contributor, even ahead of MPTC and Maynilad Water Services.

'When they hit the full throttle, hopefully, in their profitability, they should be okay for IPO in 2023, at the earliest,' MVP said.
